

About Brian Jewell

In 2010, Brian Jewell was like many Americans in their late 20s – in debt, careless with money and frustrated that he was having trouble making ends meet. So, he decided to take a deep dive into the Bible and study every single thing it says about money.

That process took the better part of a year... and that year changed his life.

Brian discovered that God created us all for freedom in every area of life – including financial life. He learned that God had a plan for how to manage money. He realized his attitudes and assumptions about money were working against him. And most importantly, he discovered that the first step to financial freedom was allowing God to change his heart.

As a professional journalist, Brian wanted to document his journey, so he created a simple blog called God, Money & Me (godmoneyme.com) to record his thoughts. Since it was founded in 2011, the site has grown to encompass more than 300 articles about faith and personal finance that reach thousands of readers every month.

While he was building the website in his spare time, he was also growing in his career as a communicator. Years of writing for travel magazines helped him cultivate a strong voice. Eventually, speaking opportunities, video appearances and other work helped him develop into a well-rounded media personality.

Brian's professional talents and personal passion converged in 2020 with the launch of 30 Days to Financial Freedom (30dayfreedom.com). In this online course, Brian guides people on a monthlong journey to take control of their money, eliminate financial stress and build a prosperous future in just 10 minutes a day.
